Theatre of the World

Amsterdam is at its loveliest during the month of June, and the city provides the perfect stage for an intensive three-day conference debating what will or should be the Future of Opera.

Our hosts Dutch National Opera & Ballet are at the forefront of innovation in the lyric arts. Their ambitious programme at this time offers a world première, Louis Andriessen's opera whose title we have used for the theme of the conference; a mixed programme of four ballets by emerging choreographers; and a spectacular new production of Tchaikovsky's Queen of Spades by Stefan Herheim with the Concertgebouw Orchestra conducted by Mariss Jansons. It coincides with the Holland Festival's celebration of International Performing Arts.

The conference programme which we have devised together explores several different aspects which impact on the Future of Opera. It has been planned so as to involve artists as well as managers in interactive discussion. It also crosses disciplines by inviting active participation from those involved in education, fundraising, marketing and communication, technical and production, as well as artistic and general direction. In addition, we welcome colleagues from the dance world to join our debates and to pursue their own agendas alongside us.

The Opera Platform was launched during last spring's conference in Madrid. We shall look back on its first year of successful activity with the purpose of developing its content and its reach in anticipation of a second stage. We invite you to contribute to that planning during the middle day of the conference, so that our digital European Opera Season may truly become a Theatre of and for the World.

Den Jyske Opera – Danish National Opera – seeking a new General Manager & Artistic Director

For almost 70 years, we at the Danish National Opera have been working passionately on creating opera performances of very high international standard and bringing them to cities across the country.

Our current General Manager & Artistic Director, Annilese Miskimmon, has recently been appointed Director of Opera designate for The Norwegian Opera & Ballet in Oslo; therefore we are looking for a new strong artistic leader. Start date of the new General Manager is 1 January 2017.

The General Manager & Artistic Director is artistically, financially and administratively responsible for the opera and reports directly to the Board. In all, we are 60 artistic, technical and administrative employees, and we are looking for a General Manager with:

- A distinct artistic standpoint of his/her own; it could be that of a director, singer, conductor or producer
- Profound knowledge of the opera repertoire and of the Scandinavian as well as international opera world
- Experience in leading an artistic company employing both artists, technical and administrative staff
- Strong ambassadorial skills and a desire to represent Danish National Opera to various stakeholders including politicians, sponsors, press and our artistic network

We appreciate an open, communicative, empathic leadership style and respect enthusiasm as well as a visionary and holistic mind-set. And we offer a unique opportunity to take lead of a professional, motivated team dedicated to touring Denmark with high-quality opera of international standard.

For further information, contact Mikael Frederiksen, Partner in Odgers Berndtson A/S, who assists us in the recruitment process, on +45 33 14 36 36.

Please send your application marked "Danish National Opera" to mikael.frederiksen@odgersberndtson.dk no later than 4 April 2016. All applications will of course be treated confidentially. Interviews will be conducted in week 16 and week 19.

The Danish National Opera works within the terms of a four-year framework agreement with the Danish Ministry of Culture. You can read more about the Danish National Opera / Den Jyske Opera on www.jyske-opera.dk.
